Zuiko is a leading manufacturer of high-speed diaper and sanitary napkin converting machines. Headquartered in Osaka, Japan, the company has machine manufacturing facilities in Osaka and Shanghai. In 2013, Zuiko commissioned a new manufacturing facility in Brazil to serve the South American market. Zuiko also designs and manufactures converting machines that make products for adult incontinence, breastfeeding pads and absorbent sheets for pets. Additional offices in the U.S. and Thailand allow Zuiko to respond quickly and effectively anywhere around the world.

When a company chooses Zuiko, they get more than just a machine. They get over 50 years of manufacturing, experience and most importantly; a long-term partner with world-wide after-sales service.

Designing and manufacturing disposable hygiene converting machines since 1946, Zuiko has grown into the industry's most well-known name. Zuiko's outstanding reputation is the result of constant innovation, technical ingenuity and company-wide commitment to product and service quality.

"Z-Style"- Zuiko's Standard Machine for Baby Tape Diapers

Zuiko's standard baby diaper production line called, "Z-Style" was developed for clients looking for a cost competitive machine without sacrificing speed, reliability, efficiency and flexibility. The "Z-Style" baby tape diaper converting machine is a smart choice for companies new to diaper production. It is an excellent choice for experienced companies looking to enhance their product offering and improve production efficiencies.

Although "Z-Style" is Zuiko's standard machine, the biggest benefit is the available options. Clients can modify, adjust, and upgrade the machine to keep up with changing business strategies and market needs. Clients around the world have standardized on "Z-Style" because of its reputation, attention to detail and compact design.

Let Zuiko put you at the forefront in the disposable diaper industry.

Besides our standard machine, Zuiko also caters to businesses that want customization. By planning and working together, Zuiko can design and manufacture a machine that best suits the customer's business strategy; whether it be high-speed production or new product design. Having a customized machine is an effective strategy that helps differentiate one manufacturer from their competition. This is the reason why many of the most competitive disposable hygiene producers in the industry chose Zuiko.

Zuiko's extensive experience working with multi-national companies around the world ensures the highest quality standards possible. Contact Zuiko at one of the locations nearest you!
